Embracing the Otherworldly

Tasha's journey with the agency began five years ago when she stumbled upon an alien artifact during an expedition in the Nevada desert.

Fascinated by the potential for interspecies connections, she decided to devote her life to bridging the gap between humans and extraterrestrials.

Her first encounter with an alien being was awe-inspiring yet humbling. Tasha recalls the moment she first held hands with Zorbax, a tentacled creature from the planet Xeloxia. The connection she felt was unlike anything she had experienced before, prompting her to establish the Troy Alien Adoption Agency 10.

A Life-Changing Mission

Tasha Black's mission is to change the negative perception often associated with aliens. Through her tireless advocacy, she aims to educate the public about the diversity and potential of alien life forms.

Since the establishment of the agency, Tasha has facilitated the adoption of over 500 alien beings. From tentacled creatures to shape-shifting entities, Tasha believes that every alien has a unique story to tell and a unique contribution to make in our society.

Building Bridges and Creating Connections

The Troy Alien Adoption Agency 10 is more than just a matchmaking service for aliens and humans. It functions as an inclusive community where individuals from all walks of life can come together to celebrate diversity and embrace the unknown.

Through various events and workshops, Tasha and her team encourage open dialogue, aiming to build bridges between humans and aliens. These interactions have resulted in remarkable achievements, such as the creation of innovative technologies and profound cultural exchanges.

The Importance of Alien Adoption

Alien adoption is not just about finding new homes for these extraterrestrial beings; it is about fostering a sense of belonging and acceptance for both humans and aliens. By welcoming aliens into our communities, we open ourselves up to a world of possibilities, new perspectives, and groundbreaking discoveries.

Tasha Black believes that adopting an alien is a transformative experience. It challenges our preconceived notions and expands our understanding of what it means to be a part of a global community.

Joining the Alien Adoption Movement

If you share Tasha's passion for fostering intergalactic connections, you can get involved with the Troy Alien Adoption Agency 10 in several ways:

- Volunteer at adoption events and help facilitate the matchmaking process.
- Participate in workshops and discussions to deepen your understanding of alien cultures.
- Donate to support the agency's operations and ensure the well-being of the aliens awaiting adoption.
- Spread the word about the agency and its mission to promote a more inclusive society.

By being a part of this movement, you contribute to the creation of a world where humans and aliens coexist in harmony, sharing their knowledge and experiences for the betterment of both civilizations.

Is his heart the mirror she needs to finally see her true beauty?

A terrible accident left Eliza with a troubled heart and an unsightly scar. No Terran man wants a woman with a disfigured face, no matter how kind or hardworking. So when Eliza receives the opportunity to adopt a baby and move to a remote frontier moon, she jumps at the chance. She falls in love with baby Clementine the moment she holds the little one in her arms.

But her feelings for Clem's tall, dark and handsome guard are much more complicated.

Troy's active duty as a member of the elite Invicta dragon force ended the day he found out he was assigned to protect an Imberian baby. The tiny creature is helpless, smelly, sticky, and the absolute light of his life – though he doesn't like to say so in so many words. After all, a brutal dragon warrior would never make a fool of himself over a small whelp. But the moment he lays eyes on Clementine's new adoptive mother, he knows he is in a whole new world of trouble.

He can't stop thinking about the small, fierce Terran. But his dedication to duty has him desperate to keep his thoughts, and his hands, to himself.

When a local man comes to court Eliza, she feels compelled to consider his suit. After all, what other prospects does she have? But before she can answer, a neighbor asks for help in the form of a wagon trip all the way out to the mines and back. Many ships have lost their navigations systems and wrecked in Han-2's Bermuda Triangle-like atmosphere, and the lush planet is now littered with hundreds of wrecked crafts, grown through with trees and occupied by animals. And the animals aren't the only things lurking.

But Eliza's got a big dragon warrior with her. What could possibly go wrong?

If you like strong women, hunky aliens, wild adventures, steamy sensual scenes, and happily-ever-afters, then you'll love the Alien Adoption Agency!
